Health Connect Registry – For Attachment Coordinators,
Administrators and Care Providers
Last updated June 19, 2023

- The Health Connect Registry is a complete, secure and available to British Columbia across the province. With the Health Connect Registry, people can register themselves or others to be attached to a primary care provider or other family doctor or nurse practitioner or another health professional.
- The Ministry of Health has launched the Registry in a phased approach. First launched in 2023, the Registry is available to people in the province of participating Primary Care Networks (PCNs) communities. As of July 2023, the Registry is available to people living in British Columbia. People must have a Personal Health Number (PHN) to register.
- Health Connect Registry will, through BC's 60,000 Health Service Organizations, and people with a responsibility for facilitating assessment of patients from the Registry will have access to the Registry for assessment of existing patients.
- Administrators and Providers should check the Health Connect Registry website for updates on the Registry for assessment of existing patients.
- The Health Connect Registry team will be working with communities that may already have a working, full or partial (partial) Registry of Health Care Providers, to transfer data for the Health Connect Registry. (This may include some, but not all, of the data that is currently in the Registry.)
- The Health Connect Registry is available to all communities across BC, including those who are not yet implemented the PCN.
- As of July 2023, people who register themselves, their family or anyone include a PHN or any other address or by calling 811. If your address is not available, 811.
- Agree to your consent to be added to the Registry for the Health Connect Registry.
