Working together to improve your care

To give you better care, we are working with Interior Health to add more staff to our team.

Today, you may be seen by a nurse, social worker, pharmacist, or other team member employed by Interior Health.

To care for you, they will access your chart, just like other team members in our clinic. On occasion, Interior Health staff may also access your chart to review their employees' work.

For more information about the information we are sharing, please ask reception for a brochure or visit www.fpscbc.ca/info-sharing.

We are growing your care team

How we share your information

The BC Ministry of Health, Services of BC, the College of Nurses and Nurse Practitioners of BC, and others are working together to improve the care you receive at your community. As part of these efforts, we are adding more staff to our team. This may include nurses, mental health professionals or other team members employed by a health authority. To ensure the safety, privacy and security of your information, we will ensure that all staff have access to your chart to review their employees' work.

Frequently Asked Questions

What is changing?

Our office is growing, we are adding health authority employees to your care team. This may include nurses, mental health professionals or other team members employed by a health authority. To ensure the safety, privacy and security of your information, we will ensure that all staff have access to your chart to review their employees' work.

As we add more staff to your team, your health information may need to be shared with these team members.

Why is information shared?

Health information is shared for many reasons:

1. To help your care providers coordinate the best possible care for you.
2. To help your care providers understand your health history, including any allergies, medications, etc.

As we add more staff to your team, your health information may need to be shared with these team members.

Is any other information shared?

Demographic, identifying information, such as the number of patients seen in a day, is shared with other health authorities for statistical purposes and the Ministry of Health. This will help identify gaps and opportunities for improvement in the care delivered to your community.

Can I opt out of having my information shared?

If you do not want your health information to be shared with health authority staff, please let your family doctor, nurse practitioner, or other health care provider know. Health authority staff cannot provide care to you without sharing your health information.

You will still receive care from your family doctor or nurse practitioner, and other staff.
